Cats are Britain's most popular pet, according to PDSA, 25% of the UK adult have a cat with an estimated population of 11.1 million pet cats, and they are often regarded as a member of the family. Now, a lot of people might not be aware that they don't have the same level of protection as dogs. Let's watch this report, and beware it contains images that some viewers might find distressing.

But this could soon be changed, as a new law which provides more legal protection for cats is waiting its turn to be debated in Parliament, once Brexit gets sorted.
